

Call for Papers, Sessions, Symposia
Austrian Scholars Conference
March 12-14, 2009
Ludwig von Mises Institute
Auburn, Alabama

The Austrian Scholars Conference is the international, interdisciplinary meeting of the Austrian School, and for scholars interested or working in this intellectual tradition, it is the event of the year. Presenters and attendees have gathered at this annual event since its inception in 1983. The history of this conference has foreshadowed all the new research in Austrian economics ever since.

The director of the conference is Joseph Salerno of Pace University. In three full days, the ASC offers eighty plus presentations on economics, history, philosophy, and the humanities, in addition to named lectures by the leaders in the field. This year will feature panels on important topics on which Austrians are uniquely situated to provide excellent insight.

A special focus in 2009 will be the history and ethics associated with the production of money. But this is not to exclude any area of interest to the Austrian tradition.

1. Individual papers. Submit an abstract of 250 words and include title of paper and institutional affiliation of the author(s). For papers on economics, also include JEL codes and keywords. You should also indicate whether you are willing to serve as a chair or discussant on another session.
2. Paper sessions. You are welcome to organize a full session. Session organizers should submit the theme or title of the session along with the names and institutional affiliations of the participants, including the chair and discussants, if any. Abstracts of papers in the proposed session, containing information indicated above, should also be submitted by the organizer or by the individual presenters.
3. Organized symposia. Organized symposia include panelists speaking on a common theme or issue, but without formal papers. To propose an organized symposium please submit a description of the theme or title of the session along with the names and institutional affiliations of the participants, including the chair.

All submissions should be sent to both Joseph Salerno (jsale@earthlink.net) and Jeffrey Tucker (tucker@mises.com). For more information, see www.mises.org
