

Economics and Liberty

AT THE MISES INSTITUTE

HISTORY of Liberty seminar May 26–31, 2002 Auburn, Alabama

"Ideas are the ultimate given of historical inquiry," wrote Ludwig von Mises. But two ideas—the magnificence of human liberty and the destructiveness of statism and socialism—are given short shrift or completely ignored by mainstream historical writing.

But there is another way. Ludwig von Mises, who sought to understand history in light of human action and choice, celebrated the rise of capitalism. Murray N. Rothbard chronicled the errors and crimes of the state.

In that tradition, the Mises Institute is hosting the History of Liberty, a summer instructional seminar for students. Modeled after the Mises University, our famous economics instructional program, the History of Liberty brings together some of the best historians working today to examine the European and American experience.

Open to undergraduate and graduate students from all disciplines.

The Faculty:

John V. Denson, Reassessing the Presidency
Thomas J. DiLorenzo, Loyola College, Maryland
David Gordon, Mises Review
Robert Higgs, Independent Review
Jörg Guido Hülsmann, Mises Institute
Donald Livingston, Emory University
Ralph Raico, Buffalo State College
Joseph R. Stromberg, Mises Institute
Mark Thornton, Columbus State University
Thomas J. Woods, Jr., Suffolk Community College

To Apply:

Fill out the Student Scholarship Application at www.mises.org/studentschol.asp, and submit, along with letters of recommendation and unofficial transcripts.

Deadline: May 17, 2002

MISES UNIVERSITY

August 4–10, 2002 • Auburn, Alabama

Come deepen your knowledge of the Austrian School, or discover it for the first time, at the seventeenth annual Mises University summer program. The Mises University is the world's leading instructional program in the Austrian School of economics. The program offers courses, seminars, and reading groups on the whole range of the discipline. A core curriculum presents economic foundations, and more than fifty elective classes explore the entire range of economics, in all levels of advancement.

Subject areas cover market behavior, competition, value and utility, money and banking, business cycles, industrial organization, method, economic history, the philosophy of science, financial economics, and more. You attend what most suits your interests and level of advancement.

Classes are interspersed with reading groups, discussion seminars, faculty panels, and plenary lectures. There are special sessions on economic history, economics and ethics, and political philosophy. Nightly social hours allow time to meet and discuss it all with faculty and other students.

Open to undergraduate and graduate students from all disciplines.

The Faculty:

Walter Block, Loyola University, New Orleans
Roger W. Garrison, Auburn University
David Gordon, Mises Review
Jeffrey M. Herbener, Grove City College
Hans-Hermann Hoppe, University of Nevada, Las Vegas
Jörg Guido Hülsmann, Mises Institute
Peter G. Klein, University of Georgia
Joseph T. Salerno, Pace University
Mark Thornton, Columbus State University
Richard Vedder, Ohio University

To Apply:

Fill out the Student Scholarship Application at www.mises.org/studentschol.asp, and submit, along with letters of recommendation and unofficial transcripts.

Deadline: July 19, 2002

See www.mises.org/upcoming.asp for information on:

- Human Action Seminar, June 2–8, 2002
- Rothbard Graduate Seminar, July 28–August 2, 2002

MISES
INSTITUTE

518 West Magnolia Ave.
Auburn, Ala. 36832-4528
Phone 800-636-4737
Fax 734-448-8148
Email pat@mises.org