MISSION

The Ludwig von Mises Institute is the research and educational center of classical liberalism and the Austrian School of economics. Working in the intellectual tradition of Ludwig von Mises (1881–1973) and Murray N. Rothbard (1926–1995) with a vast array of publications, programs, and fellowships, the Mises Institute seeks a radical shift in the intellectual climate. The mission of the Mises Institute is to restore a high place for theory in the social sciences, encourage a revival of critical historical research, promote the free and enterprising commonwealth, and counter the political philosophy of statism in all its forms. In this cause, the Mises Institute works to advance the Austrian School of economics and social science generally, and, in application, defends the market economy, private property, sound money, and peaceful international relations, while opposing government intervention as economically and socially destructive.

HISTORY

In December 1981, Ludwig von Mises's widow Margit gave her approval to found the Mises Institute. It was formally established in October 1982 and located in Auburn, Alabama, with founder Llewellyn H. Rockwell, Jr. serving as president. With the support of Margit von Mises, who chaired the board until her death in 1993, and such giants as F.A. Hayek, Lawrence Fertig, Henry Hazlitt, and Murray N. Rothbard, who headed its academic programs until his death in 1995, the Mises Institute has grown into the leading scholarly center for research and teaching in the Austrian School of economics, as well as an important research center for classical liberalism.

The Mises Institute has 250 faculty members working with it on one or more academic projects. With their help, and thousands of donors in 50 states and 64 foreign countries, the Institute has held more than 500 teaching conferences, including the Mises University, and seminars on subjects from monetary policy to the history of war, as well as international and interdisciplinary Austrian Scholars Conferences. From these programs, the Institute has generated many hundreds of scholarly papers, in addition to thousands of published popular articles on economic and historical issues.

The Mises Institute publishes books by Ludwig von Mises and other new and old works by Austrian economists, maintains the complete Mises bibliography, manages the archive and literary rights of Murray N. Rothbard, and publishes six periodicals: The Quarterly Journal of Austrian Economics (quarterly since 1998); The Journal of Libertarian Studies (quarterly since 2000); The Free Market (monthly since October 1983), The Austrian Economics Newsletter (quarterly since Spring 1984), The Mises Review (quarterly since Spring 1995), and The Mises Memo (quarterly since Fall 1987). It also published The Review of Austrian Economics (annually, 1987–1989; biannually, 1990–1997).

The Mises Institute website, Mises.org, went online in 1995 and has gone through three major redesigns to accommodate fast-paced technological change. It has featured working papers, study guides, bibliographies, biographies, e-books, publication archives, a calendar of events, fellowship applications, audio downloads, foreign language materials, a faculty directory, research tools, daily editorials, local on-site library access, and an online catalog of publications. Mises.org provides open access, is linked from classrooms and libraries around the world, and receives upwards of two million page hits per month. In Fall 2001, Mises.org opens the world's first online classroom dedicated solely to teaching Austrian economics and the classical-liberal worldview.

The Institute has produced three documentary films: Liberty and Economics: The Ludwig von Mises Legacy; The Future of Austrian Economics; and Money, Banking, and the Federal Reserve. The Institute has also published or subsidized the publication of 125 books and monographs, from Man, Economy, and State to Theory and History and Human Action, and distributes the most comprehensive scholarly book catalog in Austrian economics, The Library of the Austrian School. Altogether, the Institute has distributed six and a half million books, journals, monographs, newsletters, audio tapes, and video tapes throughout the world.

Helping students to learn the economics of freedom, and inspiring them to go on to teach, is perhaps the Institute's most important program. The Institute has held 16 Mises University summer schools for students from all over America and the world, and has assisted 7,000 students at over 900 colleges and universities with aid ranging from one-year book scholarships to full multi-year PhD fellowships. Altogether, it has reached millions of students at all levels.

In 1998, The Mises Institute moved into a new facility at 518 West Magnolia Avenue that houses an extensive and unique library in the social sciences. The building was extended in 2000–2001 to accommodate the need for more library and faculty space. Developmental emphasis for the future includes increases in on-site faculty chairs, summer-long programs, year-round internships and post-doc research facilities, and distant-learning certificates. Publishing projects include original and traditional Austrian works, the collected letters of Murray Rothbard, translations of classic Austrian writings, as well as broad periodical distribution.

COMMENTS ON THE INSTITUTE

“In order to achieve anything,” Mrs. Ludwig von Mises said at an Institute dinner in her honor, “we must all become activists. We have no choice. As my husband said so many years ago:

Everyone carries a part of society on his shoulders; no one is relieved of his share of responsibility by others. And no one can find a safe way for himself if society is sweeping towards destruction. Therefore everyone, in his own interest, must thrust himself vigorously into the intellectual battle.

“The Ludwig von Mises Institute,” Mrs. Mises said, “will do more than ‘carry its part of society on its shoulders.’ We have the intellectual leadership, the managerial expertise, and the burning desire to succeed. And we have the truth on our side. If anyone doubts that, let him or her look at all the calamities, miseries, cruelties, and stupidities of every form of collectivism and interventionism. With truth on our side we cannot, we must not, we will not fail.”

“I think Lu Mises would have heartily approved of the Ludwig von Mises Institute.” Henry Hazlitt

“The Ludwig von Mises Institute is, for me, a dream come true.” Margit von Mises

“I am heartened by the splendid work of the Ludwig von Mises Institute, which imparts the ideas of liberty as my great teacher did. I gladly serve on the advisory board, and am encouraged by the Institute’s program of scholarly publications, congresses, and fellowships to promising young economists.” F.A. Hayek, Nobel Laureate in Economics

“Regarding the magnificent work of the Mises Institute, I can only congratulate you and your colleagues on educating the world in Austrian economics.” Arthur Seldon, Institute of Economic Affairs, London

“The Mises Institute saved the Austrian School.” Murray N. Rothbard
